INVESTURE LAUNCHES "NOBON" IN AN EXCITING EXPANSION INTO THE VOLUNTARY CARBON MARKET

15 November 2022, Stockholm Sweden, Investure is happy to introduce NOBON – our new carbon credit platform.

Founded in 2020, Investure is a Stockholm-based FinTech startup that launched with the goal of mobilising capital to developing markets and bridging the SDG-funding gap. Through our existing platform, we've supported African companies in raising equity, debt and blended finance funding, and supported professional investors in co-investing and syndicating deals. In 2021, we won Mastercard's programme for future "Impact Unicorns".

With a vision to create impact at scale, we're now expanding into the voluntary carbon market through a new carbon credit platform, launching Q1 2023. Through our platform, we strive to empower local communities in lower-income countries to develop and own carbon projects through carbon financing. We offer a better way to buy, trade, retire and custody carbon credits for global buyers, and we promote financial inclusion for communities in developing countries through integrated financial products, all while accelerating the global transition to net zero.

The name NOBON reflects this exciting move and captures the essence of our commitment to create social impact through a sustainable future with no excess carbon emissions. Now we want to build a community around NOBON as a better carbon platform for people and planet.
